Comments	<input type="text" value="Cropredy is a quiet and traditional village. Of which we don't have many. To erect a building so large and so unattractively modern in the heart of this village would be disastrous. Cropredy unlike a lot of villages, attracts 10s of thousands of people each year to its festival and the one thing that keeps people coming back to the village itself is the beautiful undisturbed countryside. If we don't keep our villages as villages and we continue to build these awful ugly buildings, what is left of beautiful Britain? ABSOLUTELY NOTHING!!!!!!!!"/>
