Comments	I am a avid supporter of oxford utd and i have travelled to the Kassam stadium and many other league football grounds, I know, as do other supporters know that fans will park & walk for miles to the ground, a group will travel in one cars, arriving hours before kick off, it's all part of the experience, supporters drink, eat & visit the football shop, its all part of it. So to believe supporters will arrive by train / bus is not correct, the congestion before the match will last for hours. Normal traffic in & out of Kidlington on matchdays will be chaos. There is no reason why the club cannot stay at the kassam stadium, it has been widely reported that Firoz has happy to oufc to stay at Kassam, he has Not asked them to leave. The whole stadium was apposed by people living in Kidlington in a vote. If the stadium goes ahead , it is against the view of the local residents who will in turn loose faithing true democracy. I am firmly against the stadium being built in or around the "triangle"
