The new stadium will be such a great opportunity for the community, bringing new job opportunities and events to the residents of Oxfordshire and beyond. To me personally, watching Oxford play is my happy place. I take my so to every home game without fail. He has an autistic sister who also has ADHD and life can be tough on him at times with her consuming a lot of my time and attention. Match days are our time for him to spend the day with me, away from home and to enjoy 1-1 time with me. It's our respite together where for 90 minutes we don't have to think about anything else except the game and the team we love and support. Not only is the new stadium important to all the fans, but many like us that also call it their 'happy place'.
