Comments	<input type="text" value="There is already a 9 metre mast here. I would argue that 15 metres in a residential area is too much. This should be put either where warehouses are built there are some not too far away. This would avoid being near residential properties and allotments currently enjoyed primarily by the older generation. Alternatively put it where new houses are going to be built then people have a choice to live near it or not."/>
