Comments	<input type="text" value="The road between Banbury and Stratford is already over used since it's original purpose, it has countless heavy goods vehicles already starting early in the morning from nearby quarries. The villages of Wroxton and Drayton are both built in a different time where residential houses lined the main through road, most of these houses are of stone construction in a conservation area many choose to retain their original features in keeping with the village schemes. The noise of heavy goods vehicles in these older properties would be unbearable. Why is the site not situated closed to the m40 there are sites next to pro drive and other sites for development around the junction. Has thought been given to the upkeep over the road which already suffers sunken manhole covers due to the use of heavy goods vehicles."/>
