As a young girl I went to work on top of a double decker bus and passed these fields before they were built on and would always notice the flooded fields, and bull rushes growing in the ditches.

> I saw my foundations go in on my present home, it is heavy clay, and at this point in time the drainage works, keep developing and we will see the sewerage coming up over our manholes, I have seen Jubilee lake flood over and the pumping station not coping, I have seen the brook full and overflowing. The field this side of the railway line regularly floods, where can all this surface water go, over build on the land put as many houses in as you can and compound our future flood risk, would it not be better to build the other side of Wretchwick Way. The council objected to industrial development on the same land area. I am not objecting to house building, but like the air field and Heritage Centre, is our town ready for all this extra traffic. Do people want houses that close to busy railway lines, that will also be much busier once the new line is opened up.
