Comments	<input type="text" value="The historical importance of Gavray Meadows means that the area should be preserved for the use of Bicester's residents for education and recreation. The site comprises several small and ancient fields with green lanes. The boundaries can be seen on maps dating back to 1607 and match the pattern of hedges present today. It has been established that these hedges date from the late 16th century. The land has mediaeval ridge and furrow which is now rare in the Bicester area because of the extensive development of the town. There are long-established footpaths. I object to development on the Conservation Target Area which would destroy the significant features of this site."/>
