Comments	<input type="text" value="Once again Mr Noquet is trying to flout planning laws. This application is for a vinyard and yet they have already started works on the ground without even having a soil test to see if it is a viable site. They confirmed this verbally to my father, saying they hadn't sent off for it yet but why would they invest so much in land works without doing the most basic test to assess the viability of a location for a site with such specific needs. The piece of land is largely in the shade and completely unsuitable for this planning application, regardless of it being in a conservation area, and my belief is that they are fully aware of this. This is a blatant attempt to get permission for a barn in a conservation area when they have no intention of using it for the planning they are attempting to obtain. Therefore I strongly object to this application."/>
