| Comments | <input type="text" value="This area regularly heavily floods. We often walk here and during winter areas are often impassable due to water or the land being so boggy. There are so many beautiful animals that live in this area, their habitat will be distributed terribly while building takes place and then while more homes and people invade their territory. The main access road is already busy without adding more pressure to it, especially if the London Road crossing is down or closed for any reason. Schools within the local area are full, doctors surgery's are under pressure, how will they cope with an additional 250 homes being added? Why can't we keep a beautiful green space full of animals that are there without disturbing them and building on it, the nearby fields are being used for warehouses and no doubt more homes. Its very sad."/> |
