Comments	<input type="text" value="I absolutely object to houses being built on the last remaining grassland in the town. There seems to be no thought to conservation and biodiversity protection, or the importance of this natural area for current residents. Surely a more intelligent approach to housing could be adopted, maximising empty buildings or building on brownfield sites. While short-term profit is always the goal over wellbeing and nature, the two being inextricably linked, it seems that constant destruction and building work is all we can expect in this regrettable town."/>
