Hi Shona

I just have a couple of queries which we would ideally sort out to avoid a disc application.

No objection to the joinery details.

Whilst I think the bay would look better in oak or similar left to silver naturally, a painted window would cause no additional harm.

I can't see any photos showing double glazing to the ground floor as mentioned in the D&A statement– is there anything on file?

I would have concerns about the proposed standard 24mm thick double glazing on a listed building. Can the Applicant/Agent supply proof that slimline double glazing (Historic England class this as being between 10-16mm thick) would not be feasible for the pane size?

What colour is the edge spacer to the glazing – is it white to match the paint colour?

Best wishes

Joyce Christie
