Comments	<input type="text" value="There is too much traffic pollution in this area without the additional vehicles this development would bring. There are too many people in this area than facilities can currently support. The local roads are already insufficient for the amount of vehicles using them. We should not be building houses or anything else on farmland or green spaces. We should be preserving areas for our remaining wildlife, not destroying them. Residential developments in this area should be small and utilise disused factory and industrial sites. And based on past experience these comments and others like them will be ignored and planning consent granted anyway. These developments are destroying this area. Where we once had small pleasant towns and villages we now have generic urban sprawl."/>
