Comments	<input type="text" value="We already have Elmsbook that will substantially increase the traffic and population of Bicester. Why do we have to support more, there are other parts of Oxfordshire that are more accessible via the road network than Bicester. Also, where is consideration of acute care being considered, no new hospitals are being built to accommodate this massive increase in people, with already massively over stretched nhs services in Oxfordshire how are hospitals and community care provides meant to provide care for an ever increasing health economy? This not only beggars belief that no one has considered the impact on acute care, but what about green space, air pollution and access to the country side for our children? We have wolf park one side of Bicester, Elmsbrook, Kingsmere, why do we the residents of Bicester have to keep sacrificing more and more of our green spaces - why can't Oxford council build on their land? The golf courses around the Churchill would be a start surely.. these houses won't be built and priced for the local population, they will be built for the London commuters and will attract the same price tag, like the planned development opposite Oxford Parkway station. Cherwell council really have lost the plot, it's all about money isn't it and less about protecting green belt land, our kids access to green, clean air spaces and local people. Makes me really sad to live in the Cherwell parish."/>
