Comments	<input type="text" value="I am a University student living in Scotland right now but my main home is in Bucknell, living in the Old Rectory by the wonderful old church, and has been for the last 7 years. I am shocked to read about the plans for Hawkwell, not just the scale of the development and the impact it will have on existing residents and the environment. Importantly it's also the way that this plan has been put forward, there is clear evidence of there being a scheme at best, at worst a scam, by the developers to get this planning proposal accepted. As timing has been used to try and conceal new information, new plans, I think it is only fair now to the residents of Bucknell and surrounding Villages to, at the very least, halt this planning objection for now to allow a proper review and consultation. I could imagine if this is allowed, that compromises on all sides can be made and hopefully going forward a plan that will take in more than the developers' interests and vision for the future. Villages like Bucknell, steeped in history, with families going back generations should be treated with dignity and respect. The Councils governing decisions on planning should listen to their residents as well as the commercially driven developers hell bent on producing new homes with no care for the environment or people living around them. It is often said that young people don't get involved enough in local communities, I am putting my Objection forward now in the hope that it will be listened to and the right decision is made."/>
