Comments	<input type="text" value="No long ago I lived in Wroxton and now live close and remain close in distance and as a frequent visitor to the village. Wroxton has become quite a tourist attraction and desperately needs a pub, it's an extremely close knit community with its locals upholding traditions going back many years. The villagers have campaigned to keep the North Inn as a pub for many years. I would not understand estimate how unpopular the new owners would be if they proceeded with this plan, the locals are deeply loyal and embedded into the very fabric of this village and having lived there I know that the new owners would struggle to be accepted, if at all. So whilst this is not your normal planning permission objection that complains about the economic/environment etc issues, it is a perspective that should be considered from someone who has lived in the beautiful village and plans to live there again one day. Wroxton is locked in time with people who care deeply for its future and if people want to change that they need understand what they are up against, the North Inn needs to stay the North Inn, nothing else will be welcomed now or in future."/>
