Comments	I have lived in Stoke Lyne for my whole life. I am 14 years old. I object to this development for the following reasons: This land is not in the government's plan for development and as unspoilt countryside with a range of Wildlife and plant life, should be protected. As an avid historian, I have been very excited to hear about all the Roman artefacts and coins that have been found recently on the land that is proposed for development. How many more could there be? This village has a rich history, was formerly a cattle stock owned by the treacherous Earl Tostig (who I have learned about in my History curriculum) and features in the Domesday Book. I am terrified to think that Domesday has come to Stoke Lyne. To think that generations of people have lived here idyllically through plagues, through famine and through the civil wars (I know that lots of civil war artefacts have also been found here) and that all of this may be concreted over, this cannot be called progress. Please don't do this horrible thing, it would destroy this green and pleasant land.
