Comments	Historically the traffic driving through Aynho has been an issue, too heavy for road conditions with an increasing amount of accidents and a recent fatality. Before developments like this happen, another motorway junction needs adding between 10 and 11 on the M40 otherwise the freight and daily commute traffic of employees will only add to this nightmare. This area is hugely congested already with frequent lorry accidents. Hasn't the area suffered enough already with huge housing developments in Bicester, Brackley, Banbury, all adding to the road congestion through these rural villages? Aynho in particular has had a massive increase in traffic numbers through the main road in recent years. My prime concern is traffic congestion and village pollution and it's impact on rural villages.
