Comments	<input type="text" value="As a family we value the RSPB reserve which we believe would be detrimentally effected by this development. Oxford should uphold Green Belt policy as much as possible for clean air and the beneficial maintenance and access to nature, so sought out during the recent pandemic. The scale of the development is excessive, we need green energy alternatives but does it have to be so extensive in one region? This region is a flood plain and needs ground to absorb water. The value of this countryside for local wildlife cannot be overstated, a solar farm would threaten many species. Please find a less intrusive way to install solar panels, on existing buildings NOT on farmland or in designated Green Belt"/>
