

I would suggest that anywhere along the squiggly yellow line would provide a more suitable location for site traffic access than the one proposed, which has been proposed to sit, by and large, as close to the current residents as is possible.