Comments	<input type="text" value="We all understand the need for more 'proper' affordable housing everywhere in England but there has been so many houses built in this area in the past 20 years that it is no longer sustainable without the added infrastructure of schools, roads etc. Also, we are now starting to infringe on lovely villages in England, especially Oxfordshire and they are slowly being a part of the local towns. There are plenty of pockets of land that could be built on, feeding the developer's need without encroaching on the villages."/>
