Comments	<input type="text" value="I'm an Oxford Utd fan, but even if I wasn't, this stadium represents progress for society. It's state of the art, extremely close to the train station, and environmentally friendly. Other cities, football clubs etc., will look to Oxford utd as a model for the future, so that fans can enjoy football in a safe environment. It will represent Oxford in a very positive light in the UK and abroad.&lt;br/&gt;&lt;br/&gt;The investment it will bring to the area will be of benefit to all in Oxford too.&lt;br/&gt;&lt;br/&gt;Finally, without the stadium, Oxford utd will die as a football club. Oxford is already popular with tourists and Bicester village nearby brings in many, but think of the extra tourism if people could watch Oxford utd play in a state of the art stadium. If Oxford utd did find another place to build a stadium, do you think it would be as close to a train station? This location is perfect for the modern football stadium.&lt;br/&gt;&lt;br/&gt;Of course, people will object to it, but how much of that is born of genuine (and informed) concerns, and how much of it is motivated by Nimbyism? These are genuine questions we have to consider,&lt;br/&gt;&lt;br/&gt;By granting this stadium, I believe you will have played your part in government to affect a tangible change towards societal progress! Please do it! Not enough gets built in this country due to opposition- please don't let this be another failed opportunity to progress society."/>
