Comments	<input type="text" value="Totally unacceptable proposal. We should be getting our priorities straight and making sure what we have left of our green space is properly protected. Our natural world is crumbling and our life support system is failing us - let's look to repair some of the damage please? The idea of putting a stadium outside Kidlington is quite frankly a bit scary. Oxford is already renowned for its piss-poor infrastructure and horrendous traffic in and out of the city. Putting a bloody football stadium at the proposed location will only cause havoc for everyone already affected by the endless bloody road works, traffic conditions and unreliable transport. I also see no need to re-locate the stadium. If the idea of putting it near a train station is a key driving factor here, why isn't some money instead put into extending a public line to where the KASSAM is already? There is an industrial line already nearby!!"/>
